

Turn "we should hang out" into a firm plan.

BeThere is a group meetup app that removes the two things that quietly kill plans: the organiser nobody wants to be, and the public "maybe" everyone hides behind. One anonymous meetup, the group votes, the top pick wins, then everyone commits in a blind, timed RSVP. It comes together, or it disappears with no trace.

WHO IT'S FOR Friend groups of about four to six - the most common group size in our survey - who coordinate in a group chat and routinely watch plans fizzle. Larger groups are harder, not easier, to pin down (survey).

THE PROBLEM

Group plans die in the gap between "we should meet up" and an actual time and place. Nobody wants to be the organiser (the effort is asymmetric), and a public "maybe" lets everyone hedge. One early hesitation makes the whole group's certainty collapse, so the plan quietly fizzles in a silent chat.

HOW MIGHT WE

Help a group of friends turn a loose intention to meet into a committed plan, without anyone being the organiser, and without the social pressure of a public "maybe"?

BEFORE → AFTER

THE GROUP CHAT

Sam
we should do something soon!!

You
maybe, depends on work tbh

Jess
down if others are down

Alex
ah i can't this week

... CHAT GOES SILENT · PLAN DIES

A BETHERE MEETUP

✓ Sat 14 Jun, evening
Pizza at Franco's

IT'S ON - YOU + 4 IN

Sunday Lot

Sent anonymously

YOU'RE IN

Pizza & catch-up

6 in the group · 3 options

WHEN WORKS?

VOTE A TIME

Sat 14 Jun
evening

4 votes

VOTED

Fri 13 Jun
after 7pm

2 votes

VOTE

Sun 15 Jun afternoon

1 vote

VOTE

No names, just the group.

VOTE

Voting closes in 6h · top pick wins

The live voting screen: public momentum, zero names, one tap to commit.

HOW IT WORKS

1

Send

One meetup to the group, sent anonymously. No organiser.

2

Vote

Members +1 times and activities. Counts show, names never.

3

Lock

Top time and activity win when voting closes.

4

Commit

Blind, timed RSVP: Yes / Can't make it / "I'll go if". It clears or fizzles.